

Colin has over 25 years of experience in the application of remote sensing and GIS technologies to the modeling and understanding of environmental processes and transportation systems. He has an extensive background in the application of decision support systems and geospatial data for solving diverse problems in agricultural systems, Great Lakes ecology, contaminated areas, transportation applications, and ecosystems undergoing land cover change.